Introduction

Collecting templates from over a dozen authors, Historical Folks was originally slated to be an official GURPS supplement. After its compilation, Steve Jackson Games decided not to go forward with the book and the rights reverted back to Brian C. Smithson. Brian decided to make this supplement freely available to the gaming community and spent many hours turning the rough draft into a professional quality sourcebook, which has been downloaded and used by countless GURPS players.

This book updates the templates from Historical Folks to make them compatible for use with GURPS Fourth Edition. It is not a standalone product, as none of the design notes, customization notes, or sample characters have been copied over. Rather, think of this as an appendix to the original, updating it to the newest edition of GURPS.

Conversion Notes

Advantages

Languages (p. B23)

In many of the templates herein, languages are listed with the skills instead of with the advantages. This is intentional; characters are as likely to pick up a “background language” as they are a “background skill”, for example, and the two are learned in the same manner.

Illiteracy is very common at lower TLs. Though it is not explicitly listed as a disadvantage in any template here, any character made with these rules should consider lowering their Written proficiency in their native language to Accented, Broken, or None (for -1, -2, or -3 points respectively.)

Perks (p. B100)

Any template which includes the Honest Face perk can substitute Above Suspicion or Below Suspicion instead. The game effect is the same, but it is a social perk instead of a physical one. The social standing of the character makes them more likely to be overlooked when accusations begin flying.

Talents (p. B89)

Many of these templates make judicious use of Talents, including two new ones:

Detail-Oriented: Accounting, Administration, Heraldry, Law, Research, and Savoir-Faire. Bonus from bureaucrats, accountants, and the fastidious. 5 points/level.

Thespian: Acting, Performance, Public Speaking, and Sex Appeal. Bonus from actors, performers, and those looking to hire them. 5 points/level.

This conversion also references several Talents from GURPS Fourth Edition sourcebooks:

Allure, Bard, Devotion, Mariner, Master Builder and Sage are Talents from GURPS Fantasy (p. 132).

Talker and Tough Guy are Talents from GURPS Mysteries (p. 108).

Disadvantages

In all templates, a * next to the point cost of a disadvantage (e.g., “Bad Temper [-10*]”) means that the value should be modified for the self-control number as per p. B120.

Code of Honor (p. B127)

Huntsman: Give quarry a fair chance, be humane to prey, avoid killing indiscriminately, don't waste any game and avoid unbalancing the environment. -5 points.

Social Stigma (p. B155)

Untouchable: You are an outcast, unclean and doomed to live on the edge of society. Others react to you at -3. The exception is those who share your plight; they have no reaction penalty and may (at the GM's discretion) react at a +2 bonus. On the bright side, you have +3 on reaction and influence rolls to convince someone to leave you alone. -15 points.

Skills

Several templates make reference to “craft skills”. Per GURPS Skill Categories (a free supplement from <http://e23.sjgames.com>), this refers to Artist (Pottery, Sculpting, or Woodworking) (IQ/H), Carpentry (IQ/E), Jeweler/TL (IQ/H), Leatherworking (DX/E), Masonry (IQ/E), Sewing/TL (DX/E), and Smith/TL (any) IQ/A. For the purpose of this conversion, it should also include Armoury/TL (any) (IQ/A) and any appropriate Professional Skill (DX/A or IQ/A).

Every new skill introduced in Historical Folks converts to an appropriate Professional Skill (DX/A or IQ/A). The exception is Beekeeping, which becomes Animal Handling (Bees).

Cooking (p. B185)

Note that most characters will take this skill with the optional specialization for their own culture (e.g., a Roman would have Cooking (Roman)), making it an IQ/E skill.

Soldier [25 to 50 points]

Adapted by Inforrific from a template by Michele Armellini

Unlike most templates, the Soldier template consists of a base template followed by a choice of various service packages — neither is complete without the other. Each package includes the total price of the template (the base template cost plus the package cost); subtract the base template cost (2 points) to determine the price of the package, if necessary. The two final lenses (Sergeant and Noble) are normal, optional lenses that can be taken in addition to a package; their cost adds to the template cost (e.g., Heavy Cavalry Sergeant would be a 70-point template.)
